

Mexico Flash

In spite of a greater concern on domestic activity and a better inflation outlook, a rate cut seems to depend on a greater impairment of economic activity

Based on the balance of risks of domestic activity and inflation, the statement could suggest an additional rate cut. However, the policy paragraph does not contain the imminent rate cut signals that the central bank used in the January statement. The activity figures in the coming months will be key to the monetary stance.

- Banxico intensifies its negative tone regarding domestic activity. It stresses that the pace and depth of the economic slowdown have increased the downside risks.
- The tone on inflation is positive as the balance of risks has improved. However, it is worth noting that when discussing the upside risks on inflation Banxico stresses its transitory nature given its reluctance to accommodate second round effects stemming from supply shocks.
- The wording of the closing paragraph on monetary policy was mostly unchanged from the 7 June statement as it only added a reference to volatility in international financial markets
- Considering that the paragraph on monetary policy does not seem to open the door to an additional rate cut in coming months, the likelihood of further easing in September anticipated in our base scenario seems to have decreased. Going forward, the probability would increase with greater economic weakness and/or a relative tightening of the monetary stance.

Table 1
 Highlights from last statements

	June 7th	July 12th	Assesment
Global context	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Downward risks on global activity remain • The weakness of global economic activity has increased Lower inflation outlook in most countries	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Downward risks on global activity remain • The weakness of global economic activity has increased • Lower inflation outlook in most countries is expected 	Caution regarding downward risks on global economic activity.
Domestic activity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Downward risks on domestic activity have intensified • Domestic activity has observed an important deceleration 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Downward risks on domestic activity have intensified, given the speed and depth of the deceleration • Deceleration worsened significantly in 2Q13 by a significant slowdown in exports and weak domestic demand • Economic slack has increased 	Increased concern due to the deepening of the deceleration
Inflation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A slight inflation reduction is expected in June, but the downward trend will steepen from July onwards. Inflation will be between 3 and 4% in the 2H13 and close to 3% during 2014. • Core inflation will be even below 3% during most of 2013 and 2014. • Upward risks on inflation prevail (supply shocks), but the materialización of downward risks on economic activity could offset them. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The balance of risks for inflation has improved • Inflationary effects from the recent currency depreciation are not expected • Downward expectations on inflation prevail 	Improved balance of risks
Monetary policy decision	0.00	0.00	The room for an additional rate cut is limited
MP rate	4.00	4.00

Arnoldo López Marmolejo
Arnoldo.lopez@bbva.com

Iván Martínez Urquijo
ivan.martinez.2@bbva.com

Javier Amador
javier.amadord@bbva.com

Av. Universidad 1200, Col. Xoco, México 03339 D.F. | researchmexico@bbva.bancomer.com | www.bbvaresearch.com | Follow us on Twitter

Disclaimer

This document was prepared by Banco Bilbao Vizcaya Argentaria's (BBVA) BBVA Research and BBVA Bancomer S. A., Institución de Banca Múltiple, Grupo Financiero BBVA Bancomer on behalf of itself and is provided for information purposes only. The information, opinions, estimates and forecasts contained herein refer to the specific date and are subject to changes without notice due to market fluctuations. The information, opinions, estimates and forecasts contained in this document are based upon information available to the public that has been obtained from sources considered to be reliable. However, such information has not been independently verified by BBVA Bancomer, and therefore no warranty, either express or implicit, is given regarding its accuracy, integrity or correctness. This document is not an offer to sell or a solicitation to acquire or dispose of an interest in securities.