Asia

Not even an unexpectedly robust data release from China today could arrest the QE-tapering sell-off in Asian markets (see below on China's Flash PMI). Stock market losses were led by the Philippines (-6.0%) which played catch-up with the rest of the region after three consecutive days of being closed. The stock market in India bucked the trend (+2.3%), although the rupee plunged to a new record low of around 65 per USD as foreign investors remain weary of policy measures after last week's move by the RBI to reduce the limits on overseas remittances.

Strong China flash PMI ends doubts of growth stabilization

The HSBC flash manufacturing PMI for August rose to 50.1 (consensus: 48.2; July: 47.7), its first +50 reading since May. The outturn (while not yet final) brings the HSBC PMI more into line with the official PMI for July, which had previously ticked up to 50.3. It is also in line with strong July activity indicators (see China Flash for details). Today's flash PMI outturn was led by an improvement in domestic demand, as new orders jumped to 50.5 from 46.6 in July, while new export orders declined to 46.5 from 47.7. As noted in our latest China/Asia Outlook, under the influence of supportive policies, we expect GDP growth in Q3 to stabilize at 7.5%, and to pick up a bit further in Q4 as external demand improves for a full-year outturn of 7.6%. However, recent market turmoil from capital outflows in China's emerging market trading partners could dampen external demand, and poses downside risks to the outlook.

Shanghai Free Trade Pilot Zone receives official approval

The State Council (China's cabinet) today formally approved the Shanghai Free Trade Pilot Zone, whose creation was announced in June. Policies within the Zone aim to relax regulations on foreign investment (for example, the introduction of a negative list); open the service sector to foreign investors; and advance financial liberalization, including the streamlined opening of foreign bank branches. Plans are still sketchy and could encounter some resistance from vested interest groups.

Malaysia's central bank revises down 2013 growth forecast

Second quarter GDP growth, released yesterday, came in below expectations at 4.3% y/y (consensus: 4.7%) on weak external demand, even as domestic demand help up. The central bank revised down its full-year GDP forecast to 4.5%-5.0% from previous 5.0%-6.0%, in line with our projection of 4.8%.
