In Chile, the Central Bank survey anticipates maintenance of the policy rate in October but a cut in December. In Peru, the Central Bank kept its policy rate unchanged in October and reiterated that if necessary, it could further ease reserve requirements.

Chile - Central Bank survey anticipates maintenance of the policy rate in October

The bank's survey of economic expectations revealed a growth forecast for the monthly economic activity index of 4.4% YoY in September (BBVAe range 4.0%-4.5% YoY) and inflation at +0.1% MoM in October. In terms of monetary policy, analysts do not expect any changes in the reference rate at October's meeting, but they still anticipate a cut of 25bp in December.

Peru - Unchanged monetary policy stance

The central bank kept its policy rate at 4.25%, which has been in force since May 2011. The decision was in line with expectations, and the statement accompanying the decision revealed nothing new since the one issued after the September meeting. It is generally perceived that the Central Bank Board is comfortable with the evolution of output growth and inflation. It also reiterated that, if necessary, it could further ease reserve requirements, which is in line with our expectation that any eventual monetary relaxation would be in that form, while keeping the policy rate at 4.25% (see our Peru Flash for details).

What to watch today

Colombia - Monetary policy minutes (September, 14:00 hrs NYT)

The minutes should give further insights into the reasons for BanRep's renewed optimism. It is likely to be explained by the positive surprise of 2Q13 GDP growth and the recovery in industrial production. The minutes should also reveal any future bias towards maintaining the USD purchase programme beyond December of 2013.

Mexico - Industrial production (August, 09:00hrs NYT)

The industrial production figures will guide economic growth forecasts for the third quarter of the year. Industrial production in July fell to an annual rate of -1.6% YoY sa, due to contraction in two of its four components, construction (-6.5% YoY sa) and mining (-2.2% YoY sa). Electricity, gas and water saw a minor rise of 0.8% YoY sa and manufacturing increased 1.0% YoY sa. Construction is very likely to remain in decline although manufacturing will again see growth since US industrial output, especially manufacturing, saw major annual growth in August (2.7% YoY sa, 0.6% MoM sa). In this way, we see some recovery from -1.6% YoY sa in July to -0.8% YoY sa in August, i.e. 0.6% MoM sa.
