Today September's industrial production in Brazil should show an improvement albeit not sufficient to make up for the entire quarter. Early Mexican manufacturing indicators will probably point to a better business climate by October.

Colombia - Urban unemployment rate stood at 9.9% in September

The urban unemployment rate stood at 9.9%, in line with market consensus (10%) and similar to last month's figure (seasonally-adjusted) at 10.7%. The figure is explained by an increase in the occupation rate (+0.2pp YoY) and a decrease in the participation rate (-0.4pp YoY). Job-creation figures were mainly in line with the YoY variation, growing by 1.9% YoY (vs. 2.0 YoY on average in 1Q13-3Q13). The job-creation trend is in line with our 3Q13 activity outlook, anticipating growing private consumption supported by continuing job-creation.

What to watch today

Brazil - Industrial production (September, 07:00hrs NYT)

Today sees the publication of September industrial production data. We expect an expansion of 1.5% (MoM, 0.0% previous, not enough to compensate for the poor performance of the beginning of the quarter. However, data should reinforce the indications that economic activity in the last quarter of the year will be better than in the third.

Peru - Consumer prices (October, 11:00hrs NYT)

We expect headline CPI of 0.0% MoM, mainly due to the reversal of supply shocks that have been affecting food and fuel prices in recent months, offset by increases in prices of non-tradable goods. As a result, annual inflation should be just above the upper limit of the target range (2% +/- 1pp), and we expect it to end the year at around 3.2%, outside this range.

Mexico - IMEF Manufacturing Index (October, 13:00hrs NYT)

The IMEF indicator will help us to assess economic performance at the start of the fourth quarter. In our view, recent improvements in the manufacturing sectors in both Mexico and the US are likely to bolster producer confidence at the start of the fourth quarter. Monthly growth in manufacturing output in Mexico (0.5% MoM sa) and the US (0.6% MoM sa) in August suggest that October's IMEF manufacturing indicator will point to a better business climate. We expect the indicator to increase to 50.3 from 49.9 in September, with estimated monthly growth of 0.7% sa.
