Market Comment | Steady markets, while peripheral bonds recovered some ground

Global Financial Markets Unit 27 Feb 2017

BBVA Research

- Global stocks were little changed across the board, ahead of Donald Trump's address before a joint session of Congress, in which markets expect Mr. Trump to unveil more details of the new administration's fiscal policy. Meanwhile, the USD declined slightly.
- France: political jitters eased, after polls pointed to an increase in the probability of Macron winning the presidential election (see). Markets showed a slight risk-on after the poll results, with French and peripheral yields declining and core bond yields inching up. Moreover, the EUR recovered some ground against the USD.
- Oil prices rose once again as OPEC cuts overshadowed rising US oil production (see). A weaker USD along with the higher oil prices boosted EM currencies significantly, lead by RUB, despite the central bank's efforts to weaken the currency (see).
- Concerns about a second referendum on Scottish independence increased volatility of the British pound. There is a risk that the Scottish government will demand a second referendum at the same time as the UK triggers Article 50 of the TEU next month (see).
